

EMISSARY (SIDE 2)

(Mora, Sadie/Fairy, Frank/Fairy, Destiny/

AUNT MORA: One day, while we were watching Destiny, I felt bad because she had gotten an ouchie from falling off the rocking chair. Her mom/my sister, Sadie said,

SADIE: Destiny, what happens to ouchies?

DESTINY: They get better.

NARRATOR/AUNT MORA: My husband/Frank and I are still recovering from our loss, but getting better, with Destiny's help. One day, Destiny asked my sister to draw a picture of our family growing up. So my sister drew a picture of my mom, dad, brother, herself and me in front of our house at 1409 Chadwick in Normal, Illinois. And Destiny asked,

DESTINY: Where's Uncle Frank?

SADIE: Aunt Mora hadn't met Uncle Frank yet.

NARRATOR/AUNT MORA: So...Sadie drew Frank in the sky.

And one day, Destiny looked at Frank and said,

DESTINY: Desti - Frank!

NARRATOR/AUNT MORA: One day, Frank and I were taking care of Destiny and she accidentally called him

DESTINY: Dada!

NARRATOR/AUNT MORA: My husband is very logical and he responded,

FRANK: My name is Frank, Uncle Frank.

DESTINY: Dada, dada, dada!

NARRATOR/AUNT MORA: Then, Destiny thought for a moment, smiled and said,

DESTINY: Uncle Dada.

NARRATOR/AUNT MORA: We asked their real dada if it would be okay with him for Destiny to call Frank Uncle Dada and he's all right with it. Destiny also was teasing Frank one day, calling him,

DESTINY: Uncle Pretty!

NARRATOR/AUNT MORA: Frank didn't care, he said,

FRANK: Yeah, I'm pretty.

NARRATOR/AUNT MORA: and the name stuck. And once, when Destiny was about two, we were babysitting her and Frank was going to the basement for some ice.

DESTINY: Where is Uncle Frank going?

NARRATOR/AUNT MORA: To the basement for some ice, he'll be right back.

DESTINY: Ice with meee!
